A National Collaboratory for Fusion Energy Science

The Virtual Laboratory for Technology (VLT) is a community-based infrastructure established to advance the technology aspects of the U.S. Fusion Energy Science research program. This partnership among plasma scientists and fusion technologists focuses on more efficient, smaller and cost effective experiments, as well as innovative technologies, which are vital to achieving fusion in the 21st century.

VLT

For further information contact:

Dr. Charles Baker
Virtual Laboratory for Technology
University of California, San Diego
Engineering Building Unit 2, L-309
9500 Gilman Drive · La Jolla, California 92093-0420
Voice: (858)534-4971 · Fax: (858)534-5440
Email: cbaker@vlt.ucsd.edu · Web: http://vlt.ucsd.edu